Infrared Technology

The infrared system gently warms the body during training, helping to improve circulation and activate muscles more effectively.

Deep heat penetration supports metabolic processes, reduces stiffness, and enhances overall comfort.

Working together with movement and vacuum, infrared technology creates a smoother, more efficient, and more enjoyable training experience.

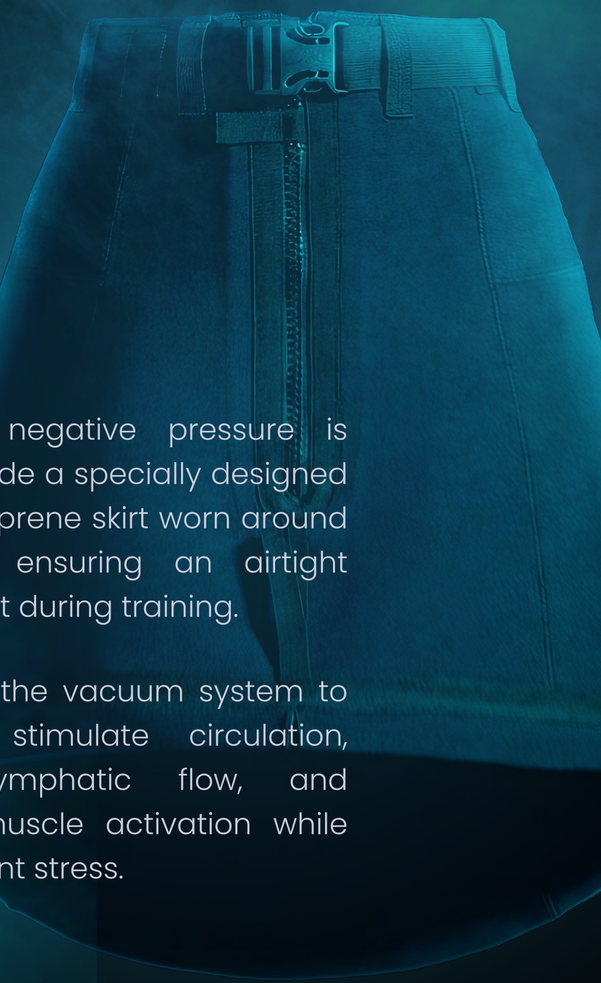

Cryo Technology

Cooling airflow helps refresh the body and support recovery during or after training.

It improves comfort, balances body temperature, and enhances the overall training experience.

Vacuum Technology

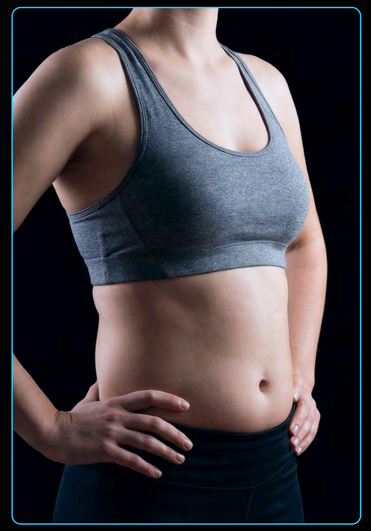

Controlled negative pressure is created inside a specially designed sealing neoprene skirt worn around the waist, ensuring an airtight environment during training.

This allows the vacuum system to effectively stimulate circulation, support lymphatic flow, and enhance muscle activation while reducing joint stress.
